

My name is Todd and by God's grace, today I'm no longer entangled with drugs. I had an ideal upbringing in every sense; I had supportive parents who raised my two older brothers in church and provided us with almost everything we could ever want growing up. They gave us everything we needed to live a successful adult life. I went to college and the instant freedom of being able to make my own decisions led to poor choice after poor choice. Fortunately, I was able to finish school and obtain a degree, but the devil obtained a stronghold on my life. As time passed drugs took more and more control of my life. Over the next 10+ years God still blessed me by giving me a beautiful wife, stable employment, a nice home and it still was not enough for me. Nothing seemed to satisfy my desires for using amphetamines, or so I thought. After burning bridges with the people closest to me, God showed favor on me and my life. He helped me land into Brunswick Christian Recovery. It stripped me of my pride and self-centeredness. God slowly began to humble me daily and build me up in his holy name. Today I'm far from being perfect, but I'm grateful to know where my true help comes from, and it comes from the Lord.
